Update on the redesign of Auckland Airport's international departure area

Landside action

- This space might look complete but there are a few final touches to add. Of most excitement... to anyone under 5 years!... is the new playground which has been designed and is now in the pricing stage. All going to plan the new kid friendly area will open in the next couple of months.
- The Bluecoat help desk has had a temporary makeover with a new design in progress
- The LAG bins have been moved to a more discrete location.

Airside action

- If you walk airside you will notice massive curved hoardings just past security. Behind these walls the DFS and JR Duty Free stores are taking shape. The new stores open 1 May and will be unlike anything ever seen before at Auckland Airport.

Have you heard about the tree?

- It is the unique and iconic centre piece of the new airside retail shopping area in the international terminal
- It will be surrounded by enlightening retail offerings and delicious new food and beverage outlets.
- It will be a space to relax, unwind and reflect.
- It will be a nurturing environment where passengers can rest
- It will be a piece of art
- It will be forever changing...
- and it will be opening in December this year!

Above: One of the major points of difference in the new airside shopping area will be a large tree like structure. The canopy of the tree will be made of canvas. It will billow out like the roof of a marquee and be constantly changing in appearance thanks to some hi-tech light projection equipment installed in the ceiling!
